Brewer	Ann	Armstrong Wood Clark Wells Higgins Bird Taylor Grove	William James John James Henry George William William	27	01	1822	Sexual assault	Sa	Ann Brewer apparently lived apart from her husband, Benjamin. It appeared that for some reason a large crowd had gathered to chase after and humiliate Ann Brewer, who, initially at least, was protected inside a stable by James Smith. However, it then appears that she was chased down Chamberlain Street, Sadler Street and Tucker Street by a horde of up to 50 people, who pushed her, dragged her, pulled off her clothes until she was nearly naked. Witnesses who tried to help included George Knight and Sarah Nicholas (wife of Richard Nicholas, stone mason), but to no avail. William Armstrong was said to be particularly forward in his pursuit of Ann Brewer and had attempted to get his hands under her petticoats.	1822/001
Coolan	Martha	Oatley	Hugh	23	07	1822	Rape	R	Martha Coolan was a single woman subject to fits who would normally have been with Caroline Clements in the shop in the Poor House. In Clements' absence Coolan was on her own when Oatley, a labourer, came in to purchase a candle, Oatley attempted to take advantage of the situation and, although Coolan had resisted, she lacked the necessary physical strength to fight off Oatley. Her cries for help were heard by Frances Phelps and Elizabeth Huish who got there too late to save Coolan from rape. A warrant for Oatley's arrest was issued.	1822/002
Knight snr	George	Knight jnr	George	24	09	1822	Assault	A	George Knight the elder, carpenter, complained that his apprentice, George Knight the younger, had assaulted him and had also absented himself from work without permission.	1822/003

Taylor	Matilda	Perham	William	07	10	1822	Sexual assault	Sa	Matilda Taylor had been staying with her aunt, Mary Burridge, wife of Stephen Burridge, labourer. While her aunt had been away from home, Matilda had been approached by William Perham and taken into a stable where he exposed himself to her and apparently attempted to have intercourse with her, having sworn her to secrecy. Matilda was 9 years old. When she eventually admitted Perham's approach to her aunt, Martha, her mother and a single woman, had her examined by two surgeons, both of whom appeared to conclude (after two examinations in each case) that no penetration had taken place.	1822/012

Parsons	Joseph	Harris	John	28	11	1822	Theft of brushes	T	Parsons ran a brush manufacturing business in Wells. It appears Harris had been employed in the business for a short period where he was in the habit of going into Parsons' shop run by John Phelps and acquiring products without paying for them on the promise of providing an alternative product - which was never delivered. Harris would then sell on the brushes to someone else, e.g. William Howell aka Thompson, Harris left Parsons' employ before the fraud was apparently detected, but he supposedly stole a watch from Luke Colman with whom he was lodging and Colman followed Harris to Chew Stoke where he was arrested.	1822/017
Helliar	William	Newman	George	02	12	1822	Unlawful toll	Ut	Helliar, a yeoman from Nempnett, had purchased two oxen from the fair in Wells and was driving them home. He was stopped by Newman who represented himself as being authorised to collect the toll due of 2d. Helliar paid the sum demanded but then found that Robert Fry, who was authorised to collect the toll, also demanded 2d. Helliar demanded recompense from Newman.	1822/018

Brewer	Ann	Brewer	Benjamin	22	01	1823	Assault	A	Ann Brewer claimed that her husband, Benjamin, had beaten her and cruelly ill-used her and, had it not been for the intervention of others, would potentially have killed her. She feared that he would continue his physical abuse and appealed that he should be required to put forward sureties as to his future conduct towards her. Brewer was required to find sureties to keep the peace towards his wife and also to attend trial at the next Quarter Sessions for which he was required to put forward further sureties. Brewer did not put forward the required sureties and was remanded in custody until the next Quarter Sessions unless, in the meantime, the necessary sureties were paid.	1823/001
Bowell jnr	Joseph	Hayes	William	07	02	1823	Theft of watch & chain	T	Bowell found that a silver watch with a chain and small seal was missing from his bedroom. From information he received he traced the watch to a pawn broker's (Moses Abraham and John Emdin) where it had been pawned for 18/- by William Hayes of Wells, lately an apprentice.	1823/002
Gooding	Thomas	Davis	James	14	04	1823	Offence against licence	L	Gooding had gone to a dwelling house run by Davis and asked for cider. Davis was not present and Davis' wife, Elizabeth, stated that they did not serve cider. James Pavey, who appeared to be a customer, went into a back room and brought back a quart of beer, asked Gooding for 3d, took the 6d offered by Gooding, handed it to Mrs Davis and took 3d from her before giving it to Gooding. Gooding claimed that Payne was not a regular servant, nor was it evident that he acted as a servant for Davis and / or his wife.	1823/003

Rawlings	Richard	Cambray	Thomas Rusher	22	04	1823	Assault	A	An affray appears to have broken out in a shop run by Rawlings where Cambray threatened not to leave without giving Rawlings a good thrashing. This led to constables being called and Cambray arrested. Benjamin Brooks was taking Cambray into custody but there was a significant delay at the prison gate because the warder was asleep. In the period of delay several members of the public became involved in trying to release Cambray from custody. Those involved included: Christopher Counsell (a carpenter from Coxley), John Plenty, William Plenty (both blacksmiths), George Moyston (carpenter from East Wells), John Moyston, William Forward, Robert Wall and Joel Hewlett. All of these men were bound over with respect to their future conduct and they, or at least most of them, wrote to the magistrates apologising for their conduct and agreeing to give a donation of £5 to good causes in return for no further action being taken by the magistrates in respect of their participation in the earlier disturbances.	1823/004

Clements	Hannah	Clements	Fanny	13	07	1823	Sureties for the peace	Su	Hannah Clements, widow, complained that Fanny Clements, wife of James Clements (and presumably therefore her daughter-in-law), had made a variety of threats against her, including setting fire to her room, that she had reason to fear physical violence. Hannah Clements requested that Fanny Clements be required to put forward sureties as to her future conduct towards her (Hannah). James Clements and Fanny Clements were each bound over in the sum of £20 for a period of 12 months.	1823/007
Fry jnr	John	Atwood	Luke	22	07	1823	Assault	A	Fry jnr, son of John Fry, tailor, complained that he had been assaulted by Atwood, a labourer, at the White Hart Inn. According to Fry, Atwood had knocked him down and had endeavoured to cover him with dung from the dung heap in the yard of the public house.	1823/008
Gardner	Margaret	Oxley	Matthew	05	08	1823	Sexual assault	Sa	Gardner was a servant to the Oxley family. She found that Matthew Oxley, a gardener and master of the household, had got up before her and tried to assault her sexually in the kitchen. She had resisted as he tried to lift up her petticoats but had not shouted for fear of waking the rest of the household. Oxley's wife, Mary, had come in and caught them; Oxley had left hastily and Gardner was left with Oxley's wife and Oxley's mother.	1823/009
Barnett	Elizabeth	Colman	John	05	08	1823	Assault	A	Elizabeth Barnett was the wife of Edward Barnett, a yeoman. She complained that she had been assaulted by Colman, knocked down and kicked about the shoulder and other parts of the body as she lay there. She feared further bodily harm from Colman and therefore requested that he be required to provide sureties of his good conduct towards her for the future.	1823/010

Knight snr.	George	Lawrence jnr	William	01	09	1823	Sureties for the peace	Su	Knight, a carpenter, lived next door to and also owned the property occupied by Lawrence, a butcher. The relationship between the two men worsened quickly with Lawrence becoming upset over demands for rent, breaking up items in the garden and abusing his neighbour. Knight became so concerned about his neighbour's behaviour that he asked for Lawrence to put forward sureties as to his future conduct. Lawrence was required to put up £20, while William Taylor, a cooper, had to put forward £10 and be bound over to keep the peace for a period of 6 months.	1823/011
Walter	John	Clark	John	09	09	1823	Non-payment of market toll	N	Walter was a shopkeeper who was also clerk of the market. Clark was a stall holder. He was supposed to pay the standard fee of 6d, but refused and was therefore pursued for the fee due.	1823/012
Tucker	William	Woodburn	Joseph	14	10	1823	Non-payment of rent	Rg	Tucker, a yeoman, complained that Woodburn had deliberately and clandestinely removed goods from a dwelling in his occupation in order to avoid the goods being distrained by Tucker (or his agent) in order to recover the arrears of rent. Tucker claimed that the goods had been removed to a house in the occupation of George White.	1823/013
